New Exhibitions

Lucid Dreams engages with the universal theme of dreaming, crossing boundaries of time and geography to investigate dreams in art, material culture, and new media from a multicultural perspective. The exhibition and accompanying catalogue present 180 works: ancient headrests, illuminated Jewish, Islamic, and Christian manuscripts, Chinese dream stones and Japanese Zen prints, alongside works in a range of mediums by artists from the last three centuries, from Goya's powerful Sleep of Reason, through Surrealist visions, to contemporary creations. All of these express humanity's never-ending desire to touch the dream and interpret it. We invite you to shift consciousness and enter spaces of reverie. Wander through the architecture of dreams; explore the connection between dreams and words; celebrate a century of Surrealism; delve into the meaning of dreams, mythical dream stories, and the ideas of Freud and Jung. Draw inspiration and discover the link between brain research, technology, art, and dreams. Immerse yourself in the transformative power of art. Nathan Cummings Building for Modern and Contemporary Art, D on map | Catalogue | From 17.12

Yuval Avital: ALMA MATER A sound installation by artist and musician Yuval Avital that draws on thousands of hours of traditional chants, whispers, and tales by women from diverse cultures and time periods, merging archival recordings and sounds from nature with cutting-edge technology, video, and artistic lighting to create an original piece. This immersive work embodies the nurturing spirit of the Great Mother archetype, creating a metaphorical womb of reconnection and healing. Its display is a prelude to the Museum's major exhibition on sound art, upcoming in 2025.

Joseph Hirsch: The Poetry of Sight Joseph Hirsch (1920–1997) was the youngest representative of the German-Austrian drawing tradition to settle in Israel. He dedicated his artistic career to figurative drawing, even when abstract and conceptual art movements were dominant. The subject of his poetic, at times ironic oeuvre was man's loneliness and alienation, his pathetic attempts to forge connections and understand his own fate. Hirsch taught drawing at Bezalel and later in his private studio. His charismatic, humorous teaching style captivated generations of students. Hagit Gallery, E on map | Booklet | From 26.12

Closing Exhibitions

Michael Gitlin: Material Matters Lines, shapes, and volumes populate the work of Michael Gitlin like protagonists of a story with no narrative, no theme, and no time. Gitlin examines the boundaries of matter and the ability of basic forms to express spiritual ideas. Hagit Gallery, E on map | Booklet | Until 7.12

Continuing Exhibitions

Gaston Zvi Ickowicz: Field The exhibition features a video work filmed by photographer Gaston Zvi Ickowicz in the field where participants of the Nova party fled on the morning of October 7, alongside two photographic series exploring chilling details of the naturally beautiful site. Design Pavilion, D on map | Catalogue

The Dawn of Darkness: Elegy in Contemporary Art Poetic reflections of elegy are found in the work of many contemporary artists. Each of the displayed works was created out of the artist's personal context, yet also carries a universal meaning, offering viewers a contemplative space to experience their own sorrow. Bella and Harry Wexner Gallery, I on map

Tomer Ganihar | Philip Johnson: Transparent Secrets Photographer Tomer Ganiher explores two major buildings planned by famed yet controversial American architect Philip Johnson, who brought the news of Modernist architecture to the US in the early 1930s, but then actively supported American Nazism. Seeking to clear his name after World War II, it was Johnson who designed Israel's Soreq nuclear reactor building. Robert and Rena (Fisch) Lewin Gallery, D on map | Catalogue

Most Likely: Designers, Archaeologists, and Mysterious Objects Promising Israeli designers were invited to collaborate with archaeologists in unraveling the purpose of ten mysterious ancient artifacts. What are your solutions to the mysteries? Bella and Harry Wexner Gallery, I on map | Booklet

Lighting the Way in Judaism, Christianity, and Islam Presenting a range of magnificent lamps made of ceramics, metal, and glass, the exhibition explores the ways in which light is used in Jewish, Christian, and Muslim sacred spaces to create an atmosphere of contemplation and holiness. Byron and Dorothy Gerson Gallery, supported by the William Davidson Foundation, L on map | Catalogue

Oded Halahmy: Selected Early Works Sculptor Oded Halahmy's work fuses influences from East and West. The exhibition presents Halahmy's sculptures from the 1970s, when he settled in New York to develop the Modernist influences he absorbed from his teacher, Anthony Caro, and search for a personal idiom that would express his Middle Eastern roots. Israeli Art Gallery, E on map | Catalogue

More than Child's Play: Rosa Freudenthal's Arts and Crafts Workshop Between the two world wars Rosa Freudenthal developed and manufactured innovative children's products that conveyed Jewish content in a modern spirit. The exhibition presents rare surviving items created by the Freudenthal Workshop a century ago, while telling the personal story of Rosa and her family. Falk Information Center, Jewish Art and Life Galleries, F on map

Crafted by Bees A collaborative project between Slovakian artist-designer Tomáš Libertíny and our curators of design and of archaeology resulted in the construction, by 100,000 bees, of a honeycomb modeled on the sculpted head of the Emperor Hadrian. Focus Gallery, D on map

Clay and Iron: Feminine and Masculine in African Cultures A gender focus on African objects in the collection reveals clear divisions, as well as complementarity. Faith-dorian and Martin Wright Gallery for African Art, E on map | Booklet

Fit for a King: French Paintings from the Alexis Gregory Bequest A display of exquisite works by 17th- and 18th-century masters, from the bequest of Alexis Gregory. Della and Fred S. Worms OBE Gallery, Lower E on map
